You must only use online tutoring that require their tutors to substantiate their skill levels. All registered tutors have to do various tests in the subject they will be teaching, interpersonal communication etc. If all tutors are sufficiently skilled, you can be sure that hiring them for test preparation, homework help, general study etc. will not be a waste of time and money.

For instance, a good online tutoring website should service grade level e.g. 9-12 college, masters level etc., subject area e.g. sciences, arts, computing etc. and specific study areas like homework help, test preparation etc.

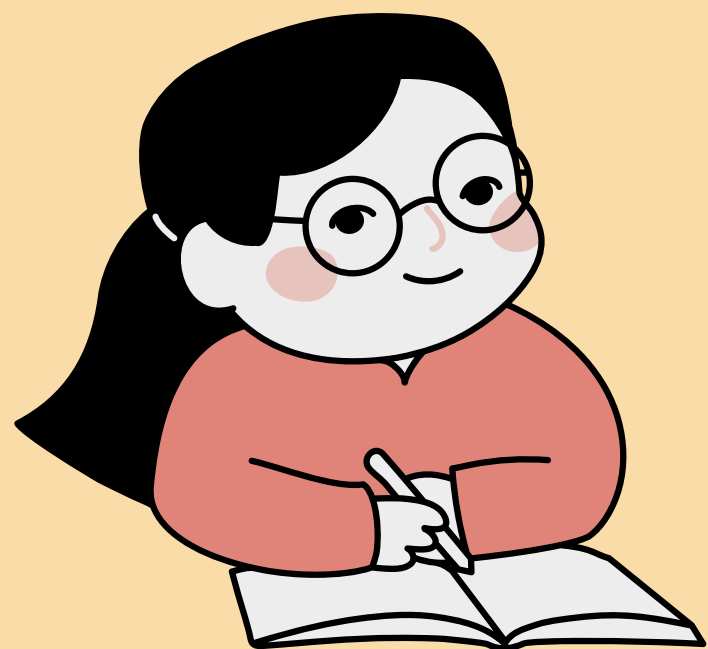

You should only use Internet for tutoring services that require their tutors and customer support to be on call at any time of the day or night. This will allow you to get homework help or test preparation services immediately the need arises. There should be an option to contact your tutors and customer care using email, live chat or telephone. A service that has this feature will have it prominently displayed on the home page.

Follows a country's curriculum

You should only use online tutoring facilities that have a reputation of following a country's curriculum. For instance, if you are in the US, they should follow the US system, if you are in Kenya, they should follow the 8-4-4 system, GSCE etc. This will allow you to study only relevant information during test preparation and homework help.

In a nutshell, getting a good online tutoring service entails a lot of careful research but the results are usually well worth the efforts.
